Troy D. Savage Letter, W.S. Hoole Special Collections Library, The University of Alabama
Biographical/Historical note

In 1940, Troy D. Savage was an attorney in Lexington, Kentucky.

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains a letter from Troy D. Savage, an attorney of Lexington, Kentucky, to Charles Shanks, a U.S. Army soldier stationed in Honolulu, Hawaii. Savage, representing Mrs. Shanks in her suit for divorce, requesting the payment of certain bills directly to her in lieu of any alimony. If Shanks declines to do this, Savage warns him that, because he made a fraudulent claim that he was single at the time of his enlistment, he could be "kicked out of the Army or forced to make your wife a substantial allotment from your [Army] salary."
